REMOVE THE NUISANCE

How about arming a few of the unemployed men with lengths of fire hose and turning them loose to give the sidewalks and pavements on Jasper and other business streets a thorough washing down?

During the winter the street department had men going about daily sprinkling ashes and sand on the walks and roadways, to give grip to the ice and to the desks and seats to the tires of the motor cars. The snow and ice have gone, but the sand and ashes remain, to be sent swirling into the eyes of the passers-by and into the open doors and windows of stores, houses and homes with every breath that comes along.

With more than four thousand men on relief, and pieces of old fire hose available, it should be possible to give the walks and pavements a thorough cleaning at a small cost or no extra cost at all, to the vast improvement of appearances and the great comfort of those who have to use the streets and those who work in the establishments fronting on these thoroughfares.

WORK OR GO ON RELIEF?

It is being freely stated in Edmonton, not as a joke, but as a serious statement of fact, that with reduced pay, reduced working time and increased taxation, some classes of employment would better their conditions if they quit their jobs and went on city relief. And a rather convincing line of argument is offered to substantiate that claim in certain instances.

The argument is that the men are not particularly situated. What is true here, and to what extent it is true, must be the case in other centres of like size generally. That is to say, the condition that is arising, but it is not that a condition is arising or tending to arise that demands the attention of the municipal councils here and elsewhere, and also of the provincial and federal authorities.

True, but the argument is approached in which people who work fare better than those who are on relief, a steady increase in the number demanding to be put on relief must follow as a matter of course. Many men will not work if they can, or think they can, live as well without working.

The city council should give prompt and thorough consideration to the question, and the points being approached, and invite the provincial and Dominion Governments to give it their attention also. To neglect the matter would be dangerous.

THE TAX RATE?

Edmonton taxpayers are threatened with a mill rate of 52.66. "Threatened" is the word that must best express the reaction of the property owner as he ponders the prospect of a levy being made upon him. The tax, it is true, is based upon an assessment that is fair in view of the actual market value of his property.

The unwelcome fact may better be faced now than later, as to the consequences of the proposed mill rate increase in the tax rate. Realtors would be to go up, unless the investment value of property were to be further dissipated; and the city is already paying or helping to pay the tax for very considerable numbers of homes. The indications to buy and own a home, already weak, would be further weakened.

In the final result a further stiff increase in tax rates, and an increase in the amount of property taken over by the city for non-payment of taxes, will be the removal of this property from the tax list. The "vicious circle" is completed when rates increase speed up conification and when conification seriously reduces the number of pockets out of which taxes can be taken.

Before confirming this tentative rate, or any rate higher than that of last year, council should be warned to go again to the estimates, and to make a clear vision definitely aimed at bringing the rate down to last year's figures. That may imply the application of economy of the "truths" variety. But what is the alternative?

A NEW MONEY SUPPLY?

A provincial legislature is clearly within its rights in recommending to the federal treasury measures for dealing with the unemployment question, and it is primarily the business of the provinces not the Dominion, to come to the aid of municipalities when a scarcity of employment creates a situation that the local councils cannot handle effectively.

The legend of Alberta has therefore in the sense gone to the proper field in suggesting that the Dominion Government make a direct issue of credit for the purpose of financing work-making projects. In plain language the proposal is that the new supply of money, to be spent, is to be assumed, in the construction of public works.

Speaking in parliament in the closing days of February, Premier Bennett discussed the money and credit issue, a topic that leaves very little prospect of his adopting this expedient. He pointed out that, beyond the Dominion note issue that is backed by the required quantity of gold, the Dominion has no power to issue Dominion notes for which there is no gold coverage at all; and argued that as "flat" money had not prevented unemployment conditions arising, a further issue of the same kind of money would not likely remedy them.

Whether the legislature or Mr. Bennett is the sounder authority on the money question, the practical probability appears to be that the latter will adopt the former. It is therefore hardly worth while for either provincial or municipal authorities to count on "inflation" as a way out of the financial troubles arising from unemployment. On the contrary, there was nothing in the speech of the Premier to suggest that he is favorable to increasing the supply of gold-backed money, to say nothing of putting in circulation a new issue without that backing.

PASSED U.

Attracted in formal evening dresses, and not without invitation, Fredric March, Kay Francis and Stuart Erwin, went through the rigors of an informal dip in the Pacific Ocean.

It all happened at Naples, Italy, far from Los Angeles, and the love story was Letitia "Madame" pursuant to his job as director of the new Paramount talking picture, "Strangers in Love," now at the Strand.

The players were supposed to stand up as a lightwood board made them do it, but they had to keep from toppling overboard. Instead, they missed their holds and found themselves in the water.

They were picked up by Director March, who, with members of his staff on a "camera" boat, took the players to the express, except that Miss Francis and March and Erwin came into possession of two complete bunches of flowers, which they later found which previously had been incanted for them.

Love versus underworld politics and the wiles of a woman used as a decoy to entice a man to his death, light on which he will be the plot of the next "Beast of the City" dramatic talkie, the picture which will be shown Wednesday at the Strand theatre.

SPRING SHOW ENLIVENED BY FISTIC BOUT

Ringmaster Matthews Ex-changes Blows With Exhibitor From R. Deer

Ringmaster Matthews and his partner, both ringmasters, were two incidents staged for the benefit of the 2000 spectators who attended the Friday night performance of the Spring Show at the arena.

In the first bout those who had come to see high-jumping horse records broken, came near seeing some application of the ring.

The first bout was staged between W. C. Matthews, well-known parrot master, and E. Willis, Jr., ringmaster, and E. Willis, Jr.

Investigation has not disclosed the genesis of the affair.

How the two incidents of audience and a fracas broke out.

Will was leading out his horse in the direction of the gate, which was not to permit competitors to leave the ring.

WODS EXCHANGED

As Willis was passing Matthews, words were exchanged and in an instant the two ringmasters exchanged a series of rabbit and other punches were exchanged.

A second bout in the portion of the building where Matthews was holding the injured animal, Willis senior, who was to have been the first to leave the ring, was held back by three trusty policemen.

Later in the evening another incident occurred that added considerably to the interest of the audience.

In this, Bert Oliver, driving one of James Black's horses, was the central figure in the ring.

R. W. Watt, Clarence.

The cause was the estimation of a disturbance when Oliver and Watt were driving the horses in the ring.

The latter appeared to clutch at Watt's riding crop. Watt stepped aside and Oliver stepped to him and appeared to flourish his whip.

Oliver then stepped to the ring and drove back to where Watt was standing and the latter barely missed being struck.

P. W. Abbott, R.C.C. managing director, said both incidents would be reported to the police and the exhibition board. Mr. Abbott deplored the occurrences which marred the show.

Fine Display of Horsemanship Feature of Friday's Program

Skylines, the little horse himself, has distinguished himself so splendidly on former occasions by his records, became the record holder of the high jump. Into the ring last night when he defeated his former Alberta record of seven feet two inches by leaping the bars at 7 ft. 4 in. Tully Sheehan, his rider, was buried from the saddle when he leaped the bars, but was not injured in his feet, to be greeted by the cheer of the audience, which at that moment had been heightened.

Ken rivally existed between Tom Ward, owner of John Peet's little horse, and the record holder, the owner of Skylines, since the last record was being arranged between Reverend Father Samilo on the one hand and Bishop Arseny on the other by the exchange of mutual apostrophes and with the help of the press and with the pamphlets published by them last night.

Bishop Arseny is in Eastern Canada at present while Father Samilo has been in the city of Regina for the past two weeks but anticipated leaving for Regina last night.

John Peet, owner of the Orthodox church has suffered in Canada a number of difficulties and trials and the breaking and wrecking of the church in Russia by the Bolsheviks.

He has been buried in the earth and his Holiness Tikhon.

CNFUSION FOLLOWED

Confusion followed in the Canadian church when the record holder was at present in Canada two main factions, first united in Canada, became divided on questions of autonomy and organization.

It is expected that a large number of all those who present Orthodox religion in Canada will be here some time this summer and that it will be the turn of the Orthodox, Rev. Father Samilo and other prominent leaders of the church to speak on the subject of healing all difficulties and obtaining harmony in the church. It is felt that the Orthodox church is the successor of a great and historic church whose adherents throughout the world have been instrumental in the welfare of people.

It is at stake and that the conversion of the Orthodox church to the religious gatherings held in Canada for many years.

Information about the arrangements is given to the quiet and assume efforts for some time past by the Orthodox church.

John Peet, owner of the church, Rev. J. Bond Mackie and R. F. Jackson, and Rev. A. Fraser Duncan for the church.

Star Ring Performers Go Into Action at Spring Horse Show This Evening

GOOD BOUTS
ARE CARDED
ON PROGRAM

Total of Eight Champs To Appear on Card At

The Arena

Bringing together the cream in Alberta's amateur boxing and wrestling divisions, the highly-athletic program of the exhibition card brought to the Arena is reported to be surpassing anything that has been attempted in local circles where boxing and wrestling has failed.

Eight Alberta boxing and wrestling stars, together with a number of other outstanding amateur exponents, will make the action for this entertainment box, which is to be held at the same time with the annual Spring Horse Show and under the auspices of the Edmonton and District Sports Council.

LAWYER A STANDOUT

Headlining the leather slingers is record-holder Louis Lavoie, regarded as the most powerful boxer in the province. Louis is an splendid competitor, and has a solid route in high gear and is a crowd pleaser of the fit, masculine.

Lawyer, a 155-pound class throughout Alberta and a figure of leading couldid, to represent Canada, will qualify for the Olympic games at Los Angeles this coming summer.

Rilly Pollard, 155 pound open champion of Alberta, will open the show in his class, while his record with equals will be shown by young boxer Johnny Smith. Both boys have fought a man, and the artistes as yet have been shown here for years. Smith and Pollard are brilliant boxers, the equal of any.

Dan Knott, whose return to ring was awaited as a major event, will remain in him capturing the 145 pound class, while the 140 pound class will be shown by Louis Jameson of the Canadian Legion. Dan, barring his way to the top, has a record of 100-10, and is the result of his rigorous training and application to his work, and should be a star in the open for the open 145 pound crown next year.

BOXING IN ACTION

Alberta's boxing stars, in 147 pounds, will oppose Tim Conroy of Calgary, and this bout should prove a good one.

Five local men to annex wrestling championships in the amateur ranks will be in Coliseum to serve their dues for the public. Ernie Van Vliet, the former favorite in the previous year, Pat McLean, 200 pound policeman, Johnny Dennis, 140, and Rosetta, and Frank Goodman, all previous champions will appear.

Al Foreman "Out" In British Rings

LONDON, April 3.—British boxer Al Foreman would not draw a who's who of the British boxing world, among whom was his title as Commonwealth champion of Great Britain. Yesterday, however, he was seen in the ring for the first time since his title had been taken away for failure to compete in the last two contests. All goes well, however, the board of inquiry made no amplification of its plain statement.

Max Schmeling

From Germany

NEW YORK, April 2—Max Schmeling, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, arrived in New York yesterday from Berlin, Germany, having completed an exhibition tour preparatory to a defense of his title against Jack Sharkey, of Boston, on May 11.

Arrived darker than his usual

Tennant cast and weighing only 184 pounds, two above his usual fighting weight, Max is in excellent condition and the meeting should be the best of the year.

The German champion will make his first appearance in the city, and there will go into training near Kingston, N.Y., on May 11.

John McGraw writes that the 16 major league clubs are nearely season.

Quite a sensational announcement.

Tangled Clue Skein Directs Search at Sea

New Hunt Started When Prisoner Taken to Hope- well Home

Bulletin News Special
HOOPSWELL, N.Y., April 8.—A tangled skein of clues, all rooted in the same place, has led the search for the baby Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. to the sea. Herewith is an artist's sketch of latest developments, starting with the arrival of the Lindberghs taken from the tomb. The news city, to confer, with Colonel Lindbergh.

The conference was regulated by State Roads, under the direction of the New Jersey police, and although there apparently were no immediate results, it was decided that the search should be continued with the aid of the coast guard, who had turned seawards. A week later an unusual hunt had been started by the coast guard, which had been directed by Lindbergh.

He is staying at the Hopewell estate where he is said to have reported that he was approached by a small cabin cruiser in the Hudson River, which with two men aboard. They wanted to know if he had any information and said he had been off with a man when a baby started to cry in the cabin. The man was described as a tall, thin sketch. He had been taken to New York and is ready there for instant departure.

Police have now identified the two men by pictures as Harry Pfleiderer, a New York lawyer, and Harry Barnes, a New York racketeer. It is believed that the two men are the ones that three snatched Norfolk, Va., last week.

B.C. Legislature Mem- orialis Parliament

Canadian Press

VICTORIA, B.C., April 9.—The resolution urging on Ottawa a need for legislation to prohibit the use of labor for the construction of the new Parliament building was adopted yesterday by the B.C. Columbia legislature.

Spurred by Col. Nels Peacock, president of the Vancouver Trades Council, the resolution was introduced by Mr. George M. Tamm, who urged that, rather than spending the working day or week there should be a day of rest.

The resolution is the most far-reaching measure in no country had been introduced in a legislature.

Mr. Tamm said: "The conference of provincial representatives has agreed that the proposed bill should be introduced in the B.C. legislature.
